EXTRA (Project FAFI)

Several places left for this weekend's sessions:

- Saturday, 16 May 2009, 3.50 to 5 pm, at Sports Planet.
- Sunday, 17 May 2009, 4.50 to 6 pm at Turf City.

As we're not likely to have enough for two sessions, I'll go ahead with the one that is more popular.

The why and how of Project FAFI.

Currently, the mainstay of the OPSAGE page are the following:

- Project FAFI.
- Challenges.
- FIOFAFI jerseys and T-shirts.

From this week onwards, there will be 3 posts to schedule the following week's games.

The following are up for next week:

FAFI game on Monday night, 9 to 10 pm, at Turf City.

Regular week night sessions. For next week, the sessions are on Tuesday through to Thursday.

There will be a separate post for next weekend. It will take a while to figure out preferences, and to firm up venues and times, for regular weekend sessions.

FAFI can be at the cutting edge of FIOFAFI.

On Seven Days:

- Sheffield United and Burnley reach the Championship play-off final.
- Steven Gerrard is the Football Writers' Player Of The Year.
- Transfer rumours.
- Lazio win the Italian Cup.
- Barcelona win the Spanish Cup, and are on course for the treble.

The Predictor will close before Saturday's game between Manchester United and Arsenal.

If you've played or are playing in a regular session this week, don't forget to vote for your player of the session.
